

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A sweat scraper includes a core made of a first resilient material defining a scraper blade and a handle. A sheath made of a second resilient material substantially surrounds the side edges of the core and defines a continuous border around the scraper blade edges. The first resilient material is preferably substantially less resilient than the second resilient material to form a compliant continuous U-shaped wiper blade.